SERIES BOOKS

Research has shown that students who read book series, particularly reluctant readers, become more engaged and enthusiastic about reading, and are encouraged to continue reading once they begin a series.

By reading a series, students become familiar with characters, the setting, and the general framework of the story with the details of the plot changing from book to book. They will also be motivated to continue reading other books in the series by their desire to find out, "What happens next?" A familiarity or bond may be drawn with relatable characters, making readers more invested in what other events may take place.
